

Rebuilding Together Pittsburgh Program: Utility Partner Programs

Linking homeowners with cost-effective, energy-efficient resources

An essential element of Rebuilding Together Pittsburgh's Safe and Healthy Homes commitment is energy efficiency. With its extensive project management experience in home repair and strong relationships with homeowners, RTP is an excellent partner for administering utility company programs for income-qualified customers. The Duquesne Light Smart Comfort Assurance Program is an energy reduction and education program—administered through RTP—that ensures that all income-qualified customers receive these services. RTP also oversees two Columbia Gas programs: the Emergency Repair Program—designed to address emergency situations that involve unsafe conditions—and the WarmWise Audits & Rebates Program, which provides Income-qualified customers with a free home energy audit, an energy efficiency plan, and funding toward installation of energy efficiency measures.

A “Whole House” approach to assessing a home’s energy performance

A trained and Building Performance Certified RTP energy auditor can uncover many energy saving opportunities. Following an energy audit, RTP works with the homeowner to secure funding and make necessary home upgrades using the high-quality home repair it brings to all its projects.

Spot-on for the Pittsburgh region

Almost 80% of Pittsburgh homes were built more than sixty years ago, before building codes required some level of energy efficiency. Homeowners can save between 15% and 25%—depending on the energy efficiency improvements—on their household energy bills.
